

The following Agreement is valid for each work (herein called “contribution”) published by Demographic Research, whether on the web, in paper, or in any other media format. Through this Agreement each author agrees to retain rights, grant rights, make guarantees, and acknowledge guidelines.

1. Each contribution appearing in Demographic Research is copyrighted by its author(s).

2. Each contribution is published under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 Germany (CC BY 3.0 DE) (<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/3.0/de/legalcode>).*

3. The author acknowledges that he/she is either the single (for contributions having only one author) or joint (for contributions having two or more authors) copyright owner of his/her contribution.

4. In being the single or joint copyright owner, he/she agrees to grant the following rights to the Max Planck Society in perpetuity:

- The unlimited, but not exclusive, worldwide right to publish his/her contribution in every form and in every media whatsoever, especially on the internet,
- The right to edit and produce the contribution accordingly,
- The right to submit the contribution to electronic information networks, and
- The right to reproduce the contribution, print it, publish it on CD-ROM media, feed it into data nets, up- and download it, distribute it, broadcast it, communicate it in any way to the public on the internet and store it in databases of any kind, including the right to give licenses with or without remuneration or royalty fees.

* To learn more about the Creative Commons Attribution License, see <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/3.0/de/legalcode>.

 Editing refers to the correction of basic orthographical and punctuation errors as well as fixing issues of clarity, coherency, consistency, and correctness throughout the contribution. Production refers to all aspects of the work done to transform a contribution into a PDF and/or HTML publication in Demographic Research.

 The author(s) will not receive any remuneration or royalty fees for the granting of rights and the publication of the contribution; however, if we, the publishing organization, should receive any remuneration or royalty fees for reproductions of the contribution, the author(s) is/are entitled to receive a 50% share.

The author also

- guarantees that the contribution has not been published before,
- guarantees that it is not under consideration for publication elsewhere,
- certifies to be the owner or joint owner of all rights necessary for this publication including all rights to use the data, tables, graphics, pictures, animated gifs, and software that are used in the contribution,
- agrees that the journal publishes the author’s name and electronic address together with the contribution,
- accepts that s/he can only sign for and on behalf of her/himself and cannot represent the interests of any of the other authors (if any); each author must sign this agreement individually,
- accepts that submission of a manuscript implies agreement with the journal’s publication policy, which is to publish all contributions (including any linked or associated material to a contribution) under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 Germany (CC BY 3.0 DE).
- agrees that the use of general descriptive names, trade names, trademarks, etc., in a contribution, even if not specifically identified, does not imply that these names are not protected by the relevant laws and regulations,
- and understands that the Max Planck Society makes no warranty, expressed or implied, with respect to the author’s contribution as published in Demographic Research.

Additional terms, permissions, and guidelines

Working paper guideline: If there is a working paper which duplicates the content of the published article, the Demographic Research editorial office requests that the paper be either taken down from any public websites or be updated with information about the address of the published contribution in Demographic Research.

Giving credit to Demographic Research: The author agrees to indicate that his/her contribution was first published in Demographic Research, giving a bibliographic reference to the publication in any new reprint.

Jurisdiction: The publisher stipulates the jurisdiction of Rostock, Germany, for any questions concerning this agreement and/or the publication of the contribution. German law is applicable to this agreement.
